Bicentennial Nature Trust - Historical Data

Concept:

In 1916, the State of Indiana authorized the creation of a state park system during the state's centennial as a gift to the people of Indiana. Former Governor Mitch Daniels announced the Bicentennial Nature Trust (BNT) in his 2012 State of the State Address as a new statewide effort to honor Indiana's 200th anniversary in 2016. It is administered by the Bicentennial Commission, co-chaired by for Lt. Governor Becky Skillman and Former Congressman Lee Hamilton.

Purpose:

The BNT was created to preserve and protect important conservation and recreation areas throughout Indiana by matching donations of land or dollars. Property acquired with this fund was to become part of the public trust to ensure that the land is protected for future generations of Hoosiers to use and enjoy.
